

Our mission

We are a non-profit organization devoted to fighting noise.

Our mission is to elevate the issue of noise pollution with federal, state, and local officials, as well as to educate the public about the dangers of noise pollution.

Get involved

- Join our mailing list
- Become a member of our online discussion group
- Form a local chapter
- Do a “Noisy Dozen” press release on excessive noise in your community
- Buy our book on illegal motorcycle noise for your local law enforcement agencies. (See motorcyclenoise.net)
- Contact us to volunteer
- Make a donation

Contact us

www.noisefree.org
director@noisefree.org
877-NOISE-NO (664-7366)
PO Box 2754
Chapel Hill, North Carolina
27515

Noise Free America
A Coalition to Promote Quiet

Visit us at
www.noisefree.org

The United States is a very noisy nation

Types of unnecessary, preventable noise:

- airplanes
- back-up beepers
- car alarms
- dogs barking
- health clubs
- helicopters
- lawn and garden equipment
- loud car stereos
- motorcycles
- piped-in music
- remote car locking
- sports stadiums
- train horns

What we do

Local and state action. We have 50 local chapters in 25 states to strengthen noise enforcement.

Noise enforcement assistance. We assist law enforcement officials with guidance and tools.

Assistance with noise issues. We provide an "Ask an Expert" service.

Publicity. We distribute public service announcements and monthly press releases. We speak publicly and we are featured regularly in national media.

Advocacy. We conduct regular advocacy trips to Washington, DC to press for restoration of the federal noise pollution control office.

Noise does a body bad

Excessive noise is linked to hearing loss, tinnitus, sleep deprivation, cardiovascular disturbances, mental health impairment, impaired task performance, aggressive behavior, and chronic fatigue.

Noise levels throughout the world are growing at alarming levels.